

MAKING BIG DECISIONS WORKSHEET

Whatever the decision is that you're facing (personal, career, life, relationship, whatever), write down your assumptions – the good and the bad.

Decision:

What are you over- and under-glamorizing?

MAKING BIG DECISIONS WORKSHEET

Then for each of your decision, think of at least one thing you can do to test it. The more experiential the testing, the better (i.e. You'll learn a ton more from shadowing someone for a week than by reading about their job, but I'd suggest both).

Dedicate a week or two to testing it (or a lot longer, depending on what's at stake). Turn each assumption into a data point.

Final decision:
